8 Enlisted Men Missing After Canoe Capsizes

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — One body was recovered and rescuers sought others Thursday at this Marine base after a grim river tragedy involving nine men rated as expert swimmers. The Marines refused to give up hope that one or more of the eight Marines and one Navy man may have survived the evident capsizing of a canoe late Wednesday.

The men, physical fitness specialists who would have gone on to train military physical instructors, were rowing over and back across the icy Potomac River when their 25-foot canoe apparently flipped.

The river is more than two miles wide at that point and the canoe was last sighted just past midway of the channel.

The one unidentified body was located about 18 hours after a big air, sea and land search.

Ironically, officials said a Maryland State Police boat not directly tied into the search retrieved the body about eight miles south and downstream from where the men were last seen.

Marine officials said the murky waters of the Potomac, which winds between Virginia and Maryland, were about 36 degrees. At the most the men were given only two hours survival time in that cold water.

One flight surgeon said they might have been able to stand it no more than half an hour.

The men were by no means rookies. Sources said four or five had served in Vietnam. One had been decorated for bravery. Several were married.

This 10,000-man Marine officer training school, the equivalent of the Naval Academy and War College, is about 30 miles south of Washington.

Lt. Col. Herbert Harkey, in charge of the rescue operation, said fishermen apparently were the last people to see the men as they rowed back toward the base after crossing the Potomac from the Virginia side of the river.

About 4:15 p.m. Wednesday, Harkey said, fishermen noticed the men in their green four-foot wide canoe "with everybody rowing strong and everything going fine."

US May Refuse To Extradite Czech Defector

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is expected to reject a request to extradite Maj. Gen. Jan Sejna, the former Communist commissar at the Czechoslovak Defense Ministry, if such a request is made.

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey, referring to a reported announcement from the Prague Foreign Ministry said Thursday "we would expect to receive one." He said it would be carefully considered but gave no indication how long a decision would take.

Sejna, 40, his son and the latter's fiancée reached the United States Feb. 28, escaping from Czechoslovakia via Hungary, Yugoslavia and Italy.

The Czech request for extradition will be based on a 1925 treaty between the two countries and it is expected to assert that the general is sought for a common crime. This has been described by the Czech government news agency CTK as "offenses concerning property."

Sejna is understood to have been under investigation in connection with alleged business dealings involving misappropriation of some $20,000 worth of alfalfa and clover seed.

U.S. officials suspect, however, that this charge is used as a cover and that the Czech government really wants Sejna back because of his role in an alleged and still mysterious military coup attempt to save Antonin Novotny as his country's president.

Novotny, regarded here as a conservative old-line Communist, was ousted from the party leadership in January by leaders viewed here as more accommodating in their views on the West.

The 1925 treaty explicitly provides that extradition requests should not be granted for offenses of political character. The treaty also denies extradition when it is obvious that the fugitive would be tried for a political offense even though the charge against him is a common criminal one.

The Czechoslovak embassy in Washington has not yet asked for a meeting with the defector, McCloskey said. Should they ask for such an interview it is up to Sejna to decide whether he wants it.

There is no word on Sejna's whereabouts and none is expected. High-ranking Communist defectors usually are taken to some secret place for extensive questioning and for protection.

FASTEN YOUR SEAT BELT

State Police Trooper Gary L. Rain of the Warren substation reminds Miss Trudy Stanton of the Times-Mirror and Observer staff to make certain the seat belt in her car is in use. Troopers assigned to Warren County and throughout the Commonwealth are joining a campaign to urge the motoring public to drive safely—use seat belts.

State Police Urge Using Seat Belts When Driving

Pennsylvania State Police are stepping up a campaign to encourage the driving public to use seat belts.

All marked state police cars are carrying a rear bumper strip reading "Seat Belts Fastened."

The major reason for the campaign comes from the Turnpike fatality record for 1967 which showed 90 per cent of those killed were not wearing seat belts and that a large percentage would have lived had they been using them.

In announcing the program, Col. Frank McKetta, state police commissioner, told of an accident in which a car went out of control and four persons were thrown out. The car came down on two women passengers and both were killed. The car was equipped with belts in both front and back seats but no one was using them.

In another case, a state trooper was involved in a high speed chase at 95 miles an hour. His

Fire Stalls Rescue Efforts For 21 Trapped in Mine

CALUMET, La. (AP) — Fire and searing heat deep in a ravaged coastal salt mine temporarily stalled efforts to rescue 21 trapped miners Thursday.

Three rescue workers who tried to douse a fire blocking their way in a tunnel 1,200 feet below the surface had to retreat from the steam and flames.

They were hauled back to the surface, in a makeshift elevator, up the fire-blackened vertical shaft of the small, isolated Cargill, Inc., mine. "It certainly isn't good news," said F. Clayton Tomnamaker of Minneapolis, a Cargill executive.

Robert Fahs, a Cargill spokesman, said cool, compressed air will be blown into the mine and the rescue teams would wait several hours before making another descent.

"It is taking several hours to run the pipe down the shafts, then we will have to pump cool air for a time," said Fahs.

There was no indication as to what was burning in the salt tunnel. In prior reports, officials said that there was little outside the vertical shaft, with its timber shoring, that would burn.

It has been almost two days since the shaft fire burned an elevator and all communications lines to the 21 men. The mine is relatively small, but it was hoped that they managed to retreat from the fire area, through tunnels winding almost a mile, and hole up to await rescue.

The three rescue workers had gone down to extinguish what was described by another team that preceded them shortly before dawn as a small fire—or "red glow"—then searched the caverns for any sign of life.

US, USSR Pledge To Protect Nations From 'A' Attack

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union jointly promised Thursday to protect weaker nations from nuclear blackmail and aggression. The pledge is designed primarily to reassure India, fearful of a nuclear attack from Red China.

U.S. Delegate William C. Foster and Russia's Alexei S. Roshchin told the Geneva disarmament talks their governments will publish formal security guarantees for the weaker countries that sign next month the treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons. These nations would abandon their claims to atomic arms.

Foster and Roshchin are co-chairmen of the 17-nation talks. The conference will report to the U.N. General Assembly, which is expected to reconvene next month to give its final approval to the treaty.

"The United States will declare that any state which commits aggression (with) nuclear weapons or which threatens such aggression must be aware that its actions are to be countered effectively, in accordance with the U.N. charter to suppress the aggression or remove the threat of aggression," Foster told the conference.

"The Soviet Union will declare that ... nuclear weapon states, permanent members of the Security Council, (will) have to act immediately ... to counter such aggression or remove the threat of aggression," Roshchin said.

British Delegate Ivor Porter announced his government is prepared to make a similar pledge.

Foster and Roshchin stressed that the security guarantees will not be stipulated as part of the treaty. India, backed by other nonnuclear weapon states, has demanded such guarantees in the treaty.

Instead, the two delegates stressed, all action in defense of a victim of aggression must have the backing of the U.N. Security Council.

Foster and Roshchin published a joint draft resolution also backed by Britain to be presented to the U.N. General Assembly meeting.

The resolution invites the Security Council to welcome the Soviet-U.S. security guarantees and to "reaffirm the inherent right of individual and collective self-defense."

Nuclear threats or attacks require rapid reaction. Western officials explained this wording would confirm the two nuclear powers' rights to act immediately, in advance of the often slow-moving Security Council.

All nuclear powers except Red China are represented in the Security Council. France, which has boycotted the Geneva talks, was expected to approve the security arrangements and the proposed resolution.

Rhodesia May Execute Several More Africans

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson declared Thursday break-away Rhodesia's leaders are "essentially evil" but he ruled out reprisals for their execution of three blacks reprieved by Queen Elizabeth.

Reliable sources in Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital, said Prime Minister Ian Smith's government is expected to follow up Wednesday's hangings by executing several more Africans Friday.

Wilson's statement in the House of Commons followed a Cabinet meeting that decided against any action that might break Britain's frail link with its former colony. Rhodesia still recognizes the queen as its sovereign. The Cabinet decided to confine Britain's reaction to condemnation.

Wilson discussed with Edward Heath and Jeremy Thorpe, leaders of the opposition Conservatives and Liberals, the passage of an all-party resolution in Parliament next week indicting the Smith regime for what was seen here as an inhuman, unlawful and immoral act.

But it looked later as if Wilson would not succeed. The Liberal party said it would go along but Heath declined to commit the Conservatives to any such action.

Militant lawmakers thought this action was mild to the point of timidity. But the truth is Britain does not recognize Du-point.

At the United Nations in New York, the Commission on Human Rights and the Committee on Colonialism condemned the Rhodesian hangings and called on the Security Council and Britain to take effective steps.

Informants in Rhodesia said the Executive Council headed by Smith met to consider the cases of six condemned blacks and to decide whether to recommend reprieves to Clifford Dupont, appointed by the regime as the queen's representative. Britain does not recognize Dupont.

Combat Casualties in Vietnam Three Times Greater Than '67

SAIGON (AP) — Hard fighting through the first nine weeks of 1968 has escalated American combat deaths in Vietnam to a rate nearly three times that in the same period a year ago, official figures showed Thursday.

Allied spokesmen consider the Viet Cong and their North Vietnamese allies, who sacrificed battalion after battalion in the lunar new year offensive, have lost men at a far higher rate.

The U.S. Command announced 542 Americans were killed in action last week, a toll surpassed only by the 543 who fell in the week of Feb. 11-17.

The death toll since Jan. 1 had risen by last Saturday to 3,254 compared with 9,353 through all 1967. American combat deaths through the first nine weeks last year totaled 1,256.

The statistics came out in Saigon while waves of B52 Stratofortresses and tactical jets rained hundreds of tons of bombs on Communist positions ringing the U.S. Marine fortress at Khe Sanh and menacing its aerial lifeline.

North Vietnamese gunners winged another C123 transport as it was landing at Khe Sanh. The big plane was put out of action, though not destroyed, and no one was injured, Marine officers said.

The 48 men aboard a C123 shot down Wednesday in hostile territory five miles east of the base were given up for dead. Two helicopters flew over the wreckage and reported no sign of life. Officers said no attempt would be made to recover the bodies of the men—44 Marines and 4 Air Force crewmen—because of the thousands of enemy troops massed around the base.

Nearly 30 of the eight-engine B52s, each of which can carry 30 tons of explosives, staged four raids on enemy holdings around Khe Sanh, where 6,000 Marines and 500 South Vietnamese rangers wait behind barbed wire for a massive ground attack that some military authorities now consider may never come.

Tactical fighter-bombers, each packing about a ton of bombs or napalm, also hit enemy positions in scores of sorties.

Individual combat flights. Damage reports from more than 200 sorties Wednesday included word from spotters of the destruction of seven enemy bunkers and collapsing of 50 yards of an enemy trench.

Targets of 83 American missions over North Vietnam Wednesday included a half dozen airfields. One was a MIG fighter base 18 miles northwest of Hanoi. Pilots have been concentrating on the fields lately to minimize the possibility Communist warplanes will try to strike at Khe Sanh and other allied posts below the demilitarized zone.

The Viet Cong's nocturnal bombardment of towns and military posts, a harassing operation started Monday, tapered off, though attacks by mortars and rockets were reported at these points.

These were Ca Mau, 150 miles southwest of Saigon, where a guerrilla infantry raid was turned back Tuesday; Phan Rang, on the South China sea 160 miles northeast of Saigon; and a government post six miles north of the capital.

Communist gunfire downed a U.S. F100 Super Sabre flying in support of government troops at the southern end of the country. The pilot was rescued. The plane was the 235th officially listed as lost in combat over South Vietnam.

The number of American combat casualties in Vietnam obviously will exceed by this weekend the total in the three-year Korean War, though fewer Americans have died here than in Korea.

Various members of houses maintain moves of government, including the martial law proclaimed Jan. 31, are unconstitutional.

But deeper reasons probably apply. Legislative critics include a newly formed group of 42 House members who call themselves the democratic bloc. They are considered to favor Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, leading to speculation that Thieu's latest troubles are due to animosity between him and Ky.

Although Premier Loc was once considered a "Ky man," sources close to Ky confide that this is no longer so. Some Vietnamese sources consider the actions of the House and Senate may be an attempt by Ky to remove Loc and embarrass Thieu at the same time.

Loc denied reports he planned to resign, but he is unhappy about the political maneuvering. Thieu is known to feel that, although Loc is not the most effective of premiers, he has been steadily improving.

Under the constitution, the lawmakers have the right to recommend the replacement of all or part of the government by a two-thirds majority vote.

'Hoodlum Priest at Khe Sanh Hit While Aiding Wounded

KHE SANH, Vietnam (AP) — The Rev. Walter Driscoll gouged the red dust from his eyes with a knuckle, flapped the clay streaks off his flak jacket and gestured at the battered face of Khe Sanh.

"Two square miles and 6,000 souls. Not much of a parish back home," he said. "But I'm here, and I'll stay. I like to think they need me."

Father Driscoll kicked the starter of a Japanese motorcycle and listened approvingly to the whine of the two-stroke engine.

Newspaperless Detroit Hears Mayor on TV

DETROIT (AP) — Asserting that "wildly irresponsible rumors" in newspaperless Detroit have caused both whites and Negroes to arm themselves in unprecedented numbers, Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh pleaded via television Thursday for "return to sanity."

"This arms race must be stopped," said Cavanagh, in whose city 43 persons were killed and millions of dollars damage done in racial rioting last July.

Detroit has been without its regular daily newspapers for 114 days because of a Teamsters strike at the evening News

Mishap Results In $250 Damage

A two-car accident at the intersection of Route 62 and South State st., Venturatown, Thursday, caused an estimated $250 damage to vehicles operated by Fred Healy, 84, 5 Church st., North Warren and Harry Critzer, 42, RD 3, Sugar Grove, according to state police of the local substation.

According to police, the mishap occurred at 3:10 p.m. when Healy failed to yield the right-of-way at the intersection and struck the Critzer vehicle traveling north on Route 62. No one was injured in the mishap, police said. Damage to the Healy car was set at $150 while damage to the Critzer vehicle was estimated at $100 according to police.

The machine jerked off with a roar along the solitary winding road through the combat base. A newcomer at motorcycle riding, he hung on grimly.

"There goes the 'Hoodlum Priest,'" a medic commented with a smile.

The priest had just been helping with wounded awaiting medical evacuation by helicopter, one of the daily duties he had assigned himself.

It was during such a chore Tuesday that shrapnel from one of five mortar rounds that landed amid the wounded hit Father Driscoll in the upper back. He was seriously wounded.

"I know they call me the 'Hoodlum Priest' because of the motorcycle bit, and I can't say that I like it very much," Father Driscoll, a lieutenant commander in the U.S. Navy, from Arlington, Mass., had told a newsmen a couple of days earlier.

"But it's certainly better than Hell's Angel, a name they hung on me at first."

Father Driscoll, a clear-eyed, round-faced 40-year-old, was the only Roman Catholic priest then at Khe Sanh. Another Catholic, priest, Lt. Raymond R. Brett of Collingdale, Pa., was killed Feb. 22 when a mortar round exploded at the medical evacuation point, a key target at Khe Sanh.

After Father Brett's death, Father Driscoll shared the care of the Khe Sanh Marines' spiritual needs with three Protestant chaplains.

His routine was largely dependent on the Communist artillerymen who infest the hills around Khe Sanh. Father Driscoll would sneak out between the barrages, revving up his motor cycle to go from place to place to beat the incoming rounds.

He might spend a few hours one morning with the 1st battalion, 9th Marines, lunch with the artillerymen in the eastern end of the base, and then go back to the regimental aid station, which was large enough to permit a mass.

"There would always be noise in the choir loft," he laughed, referring to the enemy shelling.

Father Driscoll, who arrived at Khe Sanh last October, was at the medical evacuation point Tuesday when the enemy rounds began coming in. A German newsmen, G.R. Kaul, from the Bild Zeitung of Hamburg, was nearby when the priest was hit.

Father Driscoll's motorcycle was owned by a French Catholic priest of Khe Sanh town, Father Poncet, who presented it to him for safekeeping when he evacuated the town, three miles south of the Marine base. The town fell to the Communists Jan. 21.

The French priest was killed in the fighting at Hue in mid-February.

Now the machine sits outside Father Driscoll's bunker, awaiting the new priest for Khe Sanh.

Schools Close in Washington As Teachers Demand Raise

A teachers' union forced a closing of public schools in the nation's capital Thursday as other teachers remained out on strike in Florida and Pittsburgh.

The Washington, D. C., teachers received a rebuttal from House Speaker John W. McCormack, who refused to speak to a union representative. He said teachers should be in their classrooms on school days.

More than 1,000 members of the Washington Teachers Union gave the district's 150,000 students an unexpected holiday as they appealed to Congress for a pay raise.

Two Ways Of Looking at It

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP) — The safe cracking at Carmichaels Area High School during the night was either a $5 or $6,000 burglary, depending on how you look at it.

To the burglars, who dynamited a two-foot by two-foot hole in the walk-in safe then crawled inside, it was only a $5 job because that's all they got.

But to school officials it was a $6,000 headache because they figure that's how much it will cost to fix the safe and repair the shattered office walls.

Supt. of Schools William R. Manning said he ordered the closing when nearly half of the system's 7,000 teachers asked for a day's leave. Teachers and other employees will not be charged for the leave, he said.

The Washington teachers support a bill that would raise starting salaries from $3,880 to $7,000.

Florida Gov. Claude Kirk said he was allowing a $350 million education and tax measure to become law. But its effect on the state's 14-day-old strike was unclear.

"Nobody should be satisfied with this bill—nobody," Kirk said.

The Florida Education Association said the bill is not sufficient ground for the teachers to return to work. Some 18,000 of the state's 60,000 teachers are on strike.

A Pittsburgh school official denied charges by a group of parents that the schools are unsafe because of a strike by a third of the city's 3,000 teachers.

Parents there have asked a court to order the schools closed for the duration of the strike.

The Pittsburgh Teachers Federation went on strike Feb. 29, demanding that a collective bargaining election be held. The school board says it cannot legally condone such an election.

Teachers in Oklahoma and Manchester, N.H., prepared to invoke sanctions after holding successful one-day holidays Wednesday.

Forty-two teachers in Renovo, Pa., returned to classes Thursday after a three-week strike. Their AFL-CIO union won tentative agreement for a $600 salary increase next year and a $150 bonus Nov. 1. Salaries have ranged from $4,500 to $7,500.

Disorders affected schools in Milwaukee, Wis., and Grand Rapids, Mich.

Milwaukee School Supt. Richard P. Gousha met in a marathon session with leaders of the Milwaukee Teachers Education Association who have threatened to close some inner core schools unless they can be made "safe for children and the staff."

Demonstrations began last October for "integrated" history courses showing the role of Negroes in the growth of the United States.

An inner city high school in Grand Rapids, Michigan's second largest city, was closed for the weekend so teachers and the school board could discuss "un-teachable" conditions.

South High School, long a trouble spot, has an enrollment of 1,700, of whom 500 are white.

Bucktail Area Teachers Win Concessions

RENOVO, Pa. (AP) — Teachers who engaged in a three-week strike won major concessions from the Bucktail Area Jointure School District, it was disclosed Thursday.

The 42 teachers, members of an AFL-CIO teacher federation, returned to their classes under a tentative agreement Wednesday. Their walkout had affected 998 pupils of an elementary and high school operated by the jointure.

The settlement included a $600 salary boost next year, and a one-shot $150 bonus to be paid next Nov. 1.

The board voted 21-2 Wednesday night to pay the bonus, and to grant salary increases of $50 a year to athletic coaches and $25 to their assistants, over and above other basic increases.

Second 'Biggest' Industry

Who's enthusiastic about tourism? The Pennsylvania Department of Commerce is. They claim it is the second most productive industry in the state.

A recent release states, "The industry in 1967 held its ground steadfastly against the combined resistance of unseasonably bad weather, Expo '67, competition, labor problems and social unrest in some areas. After a slow and discouraging start, the healthy and vibrant enthusiasm to travel in Pennsylvania caught fire, generated momentum and in the final analysis, the economic impact broke all previous records."

In the more established recreation areas -- Endless Mountains, Pocomo, Laurel Highlands, and the South Central complex -- revenue gains ranged from seven to 14 per cent. Of particular interest in the report was the estimated economic value of 2,750,000 tourists (about the number of visitors Warren County may entertain this year) to Lancaster County.

It was determined that this number of tourists spent around $68 million while visiting the Lancaster attractions. More of an economic boost, perhaps, than Warren County can expect from a like number of tourists in 1968. But not more than we can expect when our recreational facilities are developed to where we can hold the visitors within the county for a reasonable number of days. And even half of this amount would be enough to encourage private development of some of the recreational facilities we need so badly.

Add to this the fact that Warren County is richly endowed with natural attractions, to a much greater extent than almost any other county in the state, and the future of our tourist-based economy becomes even brighter.

Fishing--the Pennsylvania Fish Commission reported a nine per cent increase in the sale of fishing licenses last year.

Hunting--the Game Commission sold a million licenses last year. Over 32,000 more resident licenses and over 9,000 more non-resident licenses than in 1966.

Camping--showed a tremendous gain, especially in the Western section of the state.

Winter sports--gained extensively with sno-mobiling and skiing being the most popular sports.

Others--hiking, bicycling, cross-country skiing, bird watching, riding and photography all showed substantial gains in popularity over 1966, with the more rural counties getting the most attention.

Which can only mean that Warren County has an outstanding opportunity to become a leader in the tourism field, and create an affluent economy based on the second most productive industry in the state.

But no one is going to hand us our share of the $4-billion that will be spent in the state this year by tourists. We'll have to go after it --and hard.

The Lesson of Mr. Romney

The Times of London, which likes to think of itself as the mother-newspaper of the English-speaking world, and in fact is highly prestigious, is now days given to such howling editorialization in its news columns as makes Time magazine by contrast read like the tablets of detachment. On their front page they carry the story, "Mr. Romney Quits Presidency Race." And then embedded in the story: "The man who had so often fallen flat on his face since aspiring to the highest office admitted defeat at a press conference here tonight." And again: "His withdrawal two weeks before the New Hampshire primary came as a surprise, but perhaps no other man of his limited capacity would have announced himself in the first place."

Quite apart from the extraordinary journalistic impudence of The Times' evaluative journalism, the signal seems to be very clear nowadays. It is that Romney failed because he is an idiot. Because he is a man "of limited capacity," to use the condescending words of The Times. The moment is at hand to make a few observations:

1. Mr. Romney is not a man of conspicuously limited capacity. He is a man of quite extraordinary capacity. Mr. T. George Harris's recent biography is well worth reading on this point, but quite apart from that, the public record is there. Mr. Romney as a politician has been a wow in a Democratic state. As an orator, he is very difficult to beat. As an administrator, he is splendidly efficient. As a campaigner, he is indomitable, fiercely energetic, capable of matching even the long hours of a John Lindsay. And indeed, if he were so many times as good as he is, how does The Times, or for that matter anyone else, account for the support of Mr. Romney by such classy and demanding types as Governor Chafee of Rhode Island? Or, Nelson Rockefeller of New York?

2. The inference will of course catch on that the shrewd Mr. Rockefeller named George Romney precisely because he knew that Romney would stumble, and that he, Rockefeller, would be the beneficiary. Concerning which hypothesis it should be observed that if Mr. Rockefeller is so shrewd as to have been able to anticipate Mr. Romney's weaknesses at a point when Romney was widely hailed as an extraordinarily successful political figure, then Mr. Rockefeller has powers of penetration which entitle him to a wider degree of respect than he has been given even by some of his admirers.

And anyway, the collapse of Mr. Romney proves to be highly embarrassing to Mr. Rockefeller, rather than instantly beneficial. There is for one thing the derivative humiliation of having hailed a man who could not get eight per cent of New Hampshire Republicans to back him -- not a very good show for a Republican producer who more or less claims to be the true voice of the Republican mainstream. And, for another, here is Mr. Rockefeller, now faced with a serious dilemma, either oppose Mr. Nixon him-

Off Season Moving

Dave was notified at Christmas of his promotion and transfer across country to a new job. He and Kay have just sold their house and now he is, in effect, wasting time while he waits to move at the date he originally told the company he would be ready; June 25.

By this decision, Dave and Kay are wasting money as well as time, and all because they are following the now outmoded U. S. tradition of summertime moving.

Of the close to 41,000,000 Americans, one out of five of us, who will be moving in 1968, more than 60 per cent will move between June 1 and Sept. 30. This comes to a mind-boggling 24,000,000 individuals or 8,200 moves an hour during the four-month period. To cope with this rush, the moving industry will employ 30,000 extra part-time workers. It will operate on a 24-hour basis. And it will charge maximum prices.

But there's no doubt that many of these millions would be better off with a non-summer move. In spring, in fall, in winter, they would get more efficient and quicker service; they would be charged a minimum, not a maximum rate; their moves would be safer too.

The tradition of the summer move dates back to an era when vacations were almost always a summer affair and the U. S. was an agriculture-oriented economy. It has been rooted in the belief that it is bad to transfer children during a school year.

But the year-round vacation period is now commonplace and the U. S. no longer must bow to the special needs of the farmer. As for children, the new staggered school terms permit far more flexibility in transfers than ever before, and there is even an argument in favor of moving children during a school year.

In the words of Harold J. Blaine, president of the American Movers Conference and also president of Lyon Van Lines, "many educators have concluded that a mid-term change can be mentally and socially stimulating, compared with having to spend a lonely summer in a strange neighborhood. Children can acquire new friends easily in a school environment, but during summer vacation, there are few sources beyond next-door neighbors."

In an obvious effort to make more orderly use of the moving industry's equipment and personnel, the AMC is beginning a five-year program to attempt to encourage us to spread our moving periods throughout the year.

Off-season moving alone can result in savings of 5-15 per cent, Blaine estimates. Also, highways and overnight accommodations are less crowded and motel-hotel rates are lower.

It makes sense, if the figure does run as high as 15 per cent, this translates into real money on a bill which in many cases can be in four figures.

In addition, to save big money on moving expenses:

Before getting estimates, get rid of stuff you won't need or want in your new home. This is especially important if yours is a long distance move in which costs are based largely on weight. (Sample: heavy old appliances.)

If you are moving only to another part of town, send out your furniture for repairs and your rugs and drapes for cleaning, then have the articles delivered to your new home.

Now make an inventory of what is left and ask for estimates from two or three known moving companies. Check the reputation of each, if possible, with recent customers.

Beware of the "bait" bid to get your job. On long-distance hauls, rates are regulated and estimates should differ only slightly. Be sure you show the mover everything that must be moved.

Be at your new home when the shipment arrives or have someone representing you present to receive the shipment. Also have cash or the equivalent in hand to pay. Your goods may not be unloaded until you have paid. You might be charged steeply until you arrive with the proper payment.

With armed government forces on guard, Cuba's industry and commerce operated normally today despite rumblings rebel leader Fidel Castro might call a general strike.

Traveling by chartered bus, Warren Boy Choir members left this morning on another little concert jaunt that includes an appearance in Towanda, Pa.

Rotation Boosts Morale

SAIGON--If you talk to newsmen in Saigon about the Vietnam outlook, they are gloomy. Morale is low. They expect the war to continue for years and years. Many doubt whether we can ever win.

If you talk to troops at the front, however, morale is high. They would like to be turned loose to blast more villages. They are not discouraged. The chief reason probably is the one-year rotation rule. In 12 months, they know that, regardless of whether we are winning or losing, they will go home.

Indeed, while Gen. William Westmoreland was screaming for more men to fight off the harum-scarum Viet Cong attacks, veteran combat troops were being hurried home as fast as their 12-months Vietnam hitch was out.

The need for more men is still so desperate that replacements are rushed into fatigues, handed loaded rifles and hustled off to sandbagged outposts without the customary four-day indoctrination course.

Yet, even at the height of the Viet Cong offensive, planes continued to take off loaded with combat troops heading for home or for the bright lights of Bangkok, Hong Kong and Honolulu. Only the sporadic mortar attacks on the airfields briefly held up the departing planes.

This has raised a question, taken up with Gen. Earle Wheeler, the Joint Chiefs' chairman, during his recent consultations in Saigon, whether the 12-month tours should be extended.

Just as our combat troops become experienced at Vietnam-style warfare they are shipped home and replaced by greenhorns. Those willing to cope with the exhaustive paper work are also given a week of "rest and recreation" in the middle of their Vietnam duty.

This has made calendar-watchers out of GIs in Vietnam. As they approach the end of their 12-months some also start playing it safe, taking fewer risks. On the other hand, officers here agree that the 12-month limit is an important factor in their high morale.

An Army spokesman told this column that morale is much better than in the Korean War. He attributed this chiefly to the 12-month policy.

"Men can put up with anything," he said, "if they know it won't last more than a year." The improvement in morale has been achieved, however, at a high cost in efficiency. Two-year draftees, for example, usually reach Vietnam after six to eight months in the Army. Then, after their year of war, they go home to wait out the remaining few months of their enlistment.

A few are utilized as instructors, but most merely sit around Army camps twiddling their thumbs. Sometimes the Army has discouraged them early rather than keep them idle.

Put bluntly, the manpower shortage in Vietnam could be solved by extending tours of duty from 12 to 18 months. Gen. Westmoreland fears, however, this would cause serious demoralization.

Meanwhile, Wheeler has brought the prob-

Famous Predators

The badmen of the old West weren't the only varmints with prices on their heads during the days of the open cattle ranges.

There were killer wolves that had names as picturesque as those on the "Wanted" posters for cattle and horse thieves and stage coach robbers.

The all-time killer of live-stock, though, was the famous "Custer wolf." In ten years this efficient predator killed over twenty-five thousand dollars worth of livestock along the Wyoming-South Dakota border. The five-hundred dollar bounty offered for the "Custer wolf" was as high as the price on the head of many a bad man of the old West, but he was a lot harder to catch. Two reasons why he outwitted so many hunters were the two coyotes that acted as sentinels for him. They flanked him on each side and warned him of approaching danger.

It took the best hunter of the Biological Survey -- H. P. Williams -- to settle the score with the "Custer wolf." He first had to shoot the two coyotes that acted as sentinels. Then it took six months of tracking and trap setting over a big scope of country to finally catch the killer wolf.

"Rags the Digger," "Old Whitey," and the "Custer wolf" were all exceptional specimens of the plain gray wolf, commonly called the buffalo wolf.

The western stockmen applied the terms "criminals," "murderers," and "vermin" to these stock killers. But I have always felt that the plains gray wolf may have actually rendered a valuable service to the cause of range conservation. The early stockmen, in their greed, greatly overstocked the former buffalo range with domestic cattle. As long as they continued this practice, the plains gray wolf was the only force that could reduce the impact of cattle on a vital natural resource--forage.

The coyote never had the destructive powers of the plains gray wolf, and so it is not tolerated by man but secretly admired by some.

'Worse Than Kids'

HARRISBURG -- Columnist's Notebook: EXEMPLARY LEADERSHIP? When Pennsylvania's school teachers, some 20,000 strong, marched on Capitol Hill on Monday, few if any disputed their "right" to march (although whether it was "proper" for their profession depends on how you look at it) in support of their pleas for increased teacher pay.

Overall the decorum of the assembled habits of Pennsylvania's blackboard jungle as they gathered on the marble steps in front of the ancient and solid Main Capitol Building must be classified as rather good. (They even thoughtfully avoided trampling ivy plantings on either side of the steps as the crowd reached overflow proportions -- something that cannot be said of some of the more thoughtless groups who have mobbed the place in the past.)

There was however one flaw in the behaviorism pattern of those whose destiny it is to shape in large degree the ideologies and philosophies of an upcoming generation -- a flaw that profoundly shocked an older English teacher standing next to this columnist.

As the persistent, loud and obviously angry boos repeatedly rang over Capitol Hill as Governor Shafer "tried" to talk to the assembled teachers, our teacher friend standing to our left shook his head in disgust.

"I can't believe it," he said. "These are my colleagues? These are my fellow teachers? These are the ones who by example are supposed to show our children how to behave? Have they no respect for the office of the Governor, the highest office in this state? How they may feel about Mr. Shafer personally is beside the point, but the fact remains he is the Governor. Why, they're behaving worse than our kids!"

Exemplary leadership? Pennsylvania's school teachers unquestionably fell down on this one point during their rally here. It was obvious that even His Excellency was surprised, and we would add, chagrined and disappointed.

The question now is: if the teachers can behave in this manner before a personage such as the Governor, what is to prevent students from booing their teacher if they too feel aggrieved?

WATCH YOUR WEIGHT--For Pennsylvania housewives concerned with watching their own personal weight, Secretary of Internal Affairs John K. Tabor doesn't have too many pearls of wisdom to offer--but when it comes to weights of packaged material on the housewife's shopping list he does have a few gems here and there.

For example, he noted this week that shoppers run a far greater risk of buying short-weight packaged foods on Friday nights and Saturdays than they do on weekdays!

A special investigation by state weights and measures inspectors has indicated that the number of short-weight violations in retail food markets appears to increase 50 percent on Friday nights and Saturdays, according to the weight-watching Mr. Tabor.

WATCH YOUR TRASH--Among a flock of official proclamations, gubernatorial pronouncements and what-not issued the other day by His Excellency was one proclaiming the month of May "Anti-Litter Month," with the proclamation duly noting that the Garden Club Federation of Pennsylvania Roadside Council are sponsoring the anti-litter and roadside beautification campaign for the month of May.

Why not make "Anti-Litter Month" a year-round affair? DEAD -- EYE RICHARDS -- Game Commission Land Manager W. H. Shaffer, of Huntingdon, reports that on the last day of turkey season three Huntingdon High School students were hunting and ran into a flock of about 50 wild turkeys--which certainly should have made it a wild turkey shoot. However, says Mr. Shaffer, "between the three of them they shot up two boxes of shells and killed one turkey!"

Opening lead Four of ♠
South was guilty of putting all his eggs in one basket in attempting to win nine tricks.

West opened the four of spades against the three no trump contract. East played the jack and South won the trick with the ace. The jack of diamonds was put thru for a finesse and East false-carded by winning with the king. He cashed the queen of spades and continued with the five, enabling West to win two more tricks in the suit to complete the defensive book.

North was obliged to make two discards on the third and fourth spades. Declarer selected two small clubs inasmuch as he was committing himself to bringing in the diamond suit. The heart return was won by dummy's queen and South reentered his hand with the queen of clubs to lead the eight of diamonds. West followed with the six and North played the seven. When East turned up with the queen, the contract was defeated.

South did not avail himself of every opportunity in planning his campaign. He could, in fact have saved himself much mental agony by first cashing the king and queen of clubs. When East's jack drops on the second round, declarer has his nine tricks. He merely crosses over to the ace of diamonds, runs the clubs and then overtakes the queen of hearts with the king to cash his ace for the fulfilling trick.

There is an alternative play that permits declarer to develop the diamonds safely. South merely ducks two rounds of spades and wins the third with the ace. He now can afford to lose both diamond finesses for East is unable to get his partner in to cash the setting trick.

FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 1968

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—"Out of the frying pan, into the fire" could fit some situations now. Just don't panic, or become dismayed. Remember, most great accomplishments have been made despite obstacles.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Planet Mercury heightens imagination, encourages your ingenious methods. Capitalize on your talents.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—Smooth, serviceable action begets rewards of like quality. Shun the pessimistic outbursts of others. Keep looking for the sunshine back of the clouds—IT IS THERE!

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—A willingness to cooperate with the right sources will be a boon to progress. So much to be done? Take each matter in turn—and without anxiety.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Do not let problems or discussions grow out of proportion. Hold yourself in check, especially if dealing with children, elders, associates.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—A fairly productive period, waiting for you to inject improved methods to increase potential. Use the investigative approach—but with tact.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Recognize primary needs. Handle duties before thinking about week-end interests, except where appropriate. Consider the wise moves of the past; they could guide you now.

YOU BORN TODAY are astute, intelligent, sympathetic, also as immovable as a donkey when in the mood. Properly educated and using your many talents, you can reach extraordinary goals, alone or with others. You enjoy good living, peaceful surroundings, order, good manners, abhor bickering, vulgarities, living without high purpose. But you may dream hours away instead of believing strongly enough in your hopes to realize them, even against big odds. Avoid anxiety, don't mind criticism, offer your talents in good faith. Birthdate of: Luther Burbank, botanist; Oliver Wendell Holmes, American jurist.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

DETECTING NERVOUSNESS

Most of us can detect obvious signs of nervousness immediately. The lips or chin may be quivering or twitching and the voice is tremulous. Some individuals blush or the face and neck become red and blotchy. Respiration may offer a clue, particularly when the person sighs frequently or breathes rapidly. Suspicion also is aroused when the fingernails have been nibbled down to the quick.

Subtle signs of nervousness escape detection, except to a specialist in this field. These include rapid pulse, elevated systolic blood pressure, and cold, wet hands and feet. Perspiration may be so copious that when the individual lies on the examining table, sweat from his armpits creates two wet spots on the sheet. This is called the puddle sign.

There are a few unusual signs that may be difficult to prove unless the individual admits to the truth. Some middle-aged women paint the lips in a cupid's bow. They are immature emotionally, particularly if this type of makeup is associated with a baby voice.

The same can be said of individuals who wear dark glasses day and night. Tinted lenses are used as a shield against the world. In other words, these people are hiding in much the same way as an ostrich who buries its head in the sand. Exceptions are those with eye trouble or a desire to remain incognito.

Some neurotic women also reveal a positive eyebrow sign; they mimic actresses by plucking their eyebrows and replace nature's contour with a pencilled outline. Extremely long artificial eyelashes may fall into the same category.

Nervous individuals usually exaggerate their problems. They want an immediate appointment because each new symptom constitutes a grave emergency. Nausea, vomiting, loss of appetite, itching, gasping respirations, sighing, and colitis are common complaints. Others have asthma or peptic ulcer; physical illnesses that are aggravated by emotional stress.

TOMORROW: Medical Browning

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

OVERPROTECTIVE MOTHER

C.M.D. writes: Can mental depression and a guilt complex in a woman in her early forties be due to having been too dependent upon an overprotective and self-sacrificing mother?

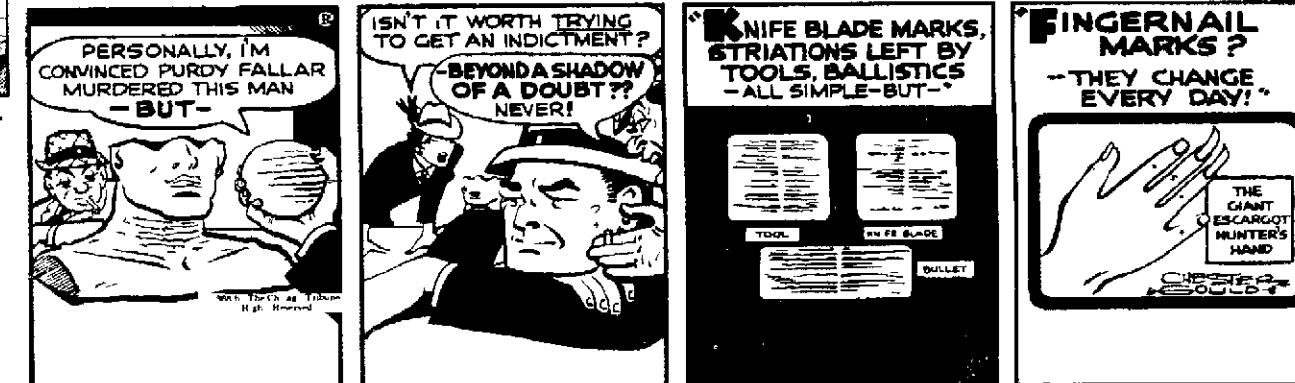

REPLY
Yes. The origins of these emotional disturbances are numerous and I assume an expert helped you to a better understanding of your problem. I emphasize the word expert because errors in diagnosis and treatment lead to confusion and accentuate the anxiety.

GALL BLADDER TEST

R.L. writes: Do the dye tests that are used in gall bladder disease offer conclusive evidence?

REPLY
Yes, provided the dye is taken according to directions and absorbed by the stomach. Failure of these dyes to enter the gall bladder is indicative of disease 97 per cent of the time.

Competition will be held in two age divisions, 9-11 and 12-14. The champion and runner-up in each class will represent Youngsville at the AAU-sponsored Junior Olympic Tournament at Fort LeBeauf High School on March 15-16. The tourney will include 26 other area teams.

The first two place winners at Ft. LeBeauf will advance to the State Junior Olympic Tournament at Greensburg later this month.

Today's tourney is open to the public and all area mat fans

Cage Benefit At WAHS Tonight

The Warren Lawmen put their record on the line again tonight in a benefit basketball game against the Warren Faculty at 7:30 in the WAHS gym.

The varsity club is sponsoring the contest. Tickets are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students.

Dickinson Leads at Doral Open

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Whipping back into shape after a five-week layoff, 40-year-old Gardner Dickinson hammered out a record-tying, seven-under-par 65 Thursday and grabbed the first round lead in the $100,000 Doral Open Golf Tournament.

His performance left some of the big favorites well in the wake of the thin 130-pounder from Palm Beach, Fla.

"I left the tour for five weeks last fall, laid around and fished with my kids," Dickinson said. "I'll never do that again. The road back is too steep."

But Dickinson evidently was back in his top form for the first time since he wound up the 1967 tour with $65,519 in winnings, a personal record for a career now in its 17th season.

Lionel Hebert, whose last tournament victory was two years ago at Orlando, Fla., and Howie Johnson, who hasn't won one on the U.S. tour since 1950, trailed Dickinson with 67.

Ray Floyd, weakened by a virus infection, tied Dave Stockton and Dave Hill for third at 68.

Bunched at 69 were Jack Montgomery, Romero Blancas, Dudley Wysong, Charles Coody, Don January and Bert Yancey.

It was a rough day for dapper Doug Sanders, defending champion and two-time winner of the tournament. He bogeyed four of five holes in a dismal stretch along the back nine and wound up far back in the field with a 73.

Jack Nicklaus ran into a putting lapse and took a par 72 after three-putting three greens.

But the greatest misfortune of the day fell on George Knudson. Seeking his third tournament victory in a row, the lanky Canadian flopped to a 76.

Fishing School At Brokenstraw

The Pennsylvania Fish Commission will conduct a fishing school for the general public at the Brokenstraw Fish and Game Club on Mead Run Road, one mile west of Youngsville off Route 6.

There will be three two-hour sessions on the following dates: March 14, 21 and 28 from 7 to 9 p.m. Anyone attending all three classes will be presented a certificate of attainment and a sleeve patch.

Instruction will include fly fishing, fly tying, spin casting, fish identification, and many other aspects of fishing. Plans are being made to secure the services of an expert with the fly rod and spinning outfit, one who has taken his share of trophies in national competitions.

North Warren Rips Market St., 44-27

Three North Warren cagers scored in double figures in a 44-27 triumph over Market Street in the Gra-Y Basketball League yesterday.

Kevin Fisher took game-high honors with 15 points, Mike Waite hit for 12 and Tim Zdarko had 11.

For Market, Al Torrance scored eight points, Tim Gay and Willie LeMeur each had six.

The win was North Warren's third in second halfplay against one defeat.

U.S. Adviser Suggests: Dump Contraband in Sea

WASHINGTON (AP) — A secret military maneuver to seize all contraband in South Vietnam and dump it in the sea was recommended by a U.S. civilian adviser as one way to end Vietnamese corruption.

If all the contraband were dumped "without regard for its worth or ownership," wrote the adviser in Vietnam, the "where-with-all to buy favors would be gone."

But he said that between seizing and dumping, "no time must be allowed for injustices" to be righted, which is to say, before powerful individuals can recover from the shock and take steps to protect their interests.

His recommendations were included in a report furnished last November to a committee of the U.S. mission in Saigon.

The adviser's immediate superior recommended to the committee that the United States seize the initiative to end corruption before "the whole country and our efforts on its behalf go down the drain."

The reports were made available to Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, chairman of the Senate foreign aid expenditures subcommittee. He promised new hearings by April into corruption, declaring that the reports show "wholesale corruption on every level."

The reports were released to The Associated Press on condition the advisers' names not be used.

The adviser who recommended the seizure-dumping plot said that "denying corrupt persons of their income by seizing and destroying all obvious contraband would free a large portion of the underprivileged to seek an honest and rewarding life."

He said: "Available are Navy issue combat boots, jungle greens, Polaroid cameras, marijuana, U.S. and other foreign cigarettes, Army rations, fresh American fruit, Communist-manufactured goods and petroleum products."

The adviser wrote: "Cattle and swine are openly bargained for and smuggled along the Cambodian border. Smugglers operate open markets on Vietnamese soil along the Cambodian border from the Mekong to the Gulf of Siam."

"Province chiefs, district chiefs, customs and police officials are all supposed to be tolerating this illicit trade for a share of the profits. The Viet Cong are welcome partners according to reports from advisers in border provinces."

The chief adviser listed types of corruption ranging from pay-offs to avoid customs duties, to bribes to get out of prison.

Fiscal Headaches Plague Board

CORRY — The school bus contractors in Columbus township continue to get paid but, according to the school board not much else is in sight in the way of covering other expenses.

Among other reasons, Columbus finds itself in a financial bind is that the state semi-annual reimbursement check has not yet arrived. Although the latter is not exactly late, Columbus is just shy of money.

At Monday's meeting, the board agreed to pay the transportation bill but had to hedge on other things. The directors know they will have to borrow if the state check doesn't arrive by April 1. Among the obligations to be faced is a $44,000 payment to the Corry Area Jointure.

Meanwhile a cutback in state funds is taking place in Columbus as well as other districts across the state. The state's longtime subsidy of $200 a year for each one-room school closed permanently is being stopped. In Columbus this means an annual loss of $2,400 in revenue.

Closed school subsidies involved buildings closed between 1914 and 1940 and the payments have continued until this year.

Along with fiscal headaches, Columbus directors have been faced with a series of incidents involving vandalism to school bus stop shanties. It costs money to repair the shanties and in some cases the directors have done the work themselves.

Named by Governor

Jack A. Henry, 1906 Pennsylvania ave. east, has been appointed by Gov. Raymond Shafer a member of the Air Pollution Control Association, Region III, as of March 6.

Confirmation of the appointment was received Thursday in a letter from the governor's office to Gurney Ball, chairman of the Warren County Republican Committee.

Area Man Charged

A charge of driving under the influence has been filed against a 51-year-old North Warren man.

Borough police officers Warren Davis and Richard White apprehended Jack Wilson Hoover, Sunset Trailer Park, at 5:20 p.m. Wednesday.

According to police, Hoover was released on $250 cash bail for his appearance in court at a later date.

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Dr. Richard A. Peters, Heart Fund campaign chairman of Warren County, Thursday expressed his appreciation to all leaders and others who assisted in the 1968 canvas. Pictured, front row, from left, Dr. Peters, Mrs. Gerald Deutschlander, Columbus campaign chairman; Mrs. Donald Spencer, publicity; Mrs. James Potter, publicity; back row, Mrs. Herbert Putnam,

Notice Before Raids Given To Protect Rights of Suspects

HARRISBURG (AP) — A Health Department official said Thursday protection of the constitutional rights of suspects is the main reason state narcotics agents are required in certain cases to give 72 hours notice to headquarters before making dope raids.

"This is not an attempt to stop enforcement of narcotics laws," said Dr. J. Thomas Millington, director of the Bureau of Health Service.

He commented on charges made at a news conference Wednesday by two Democratic assemblymen from Bucks County. Reps. Milton Berkes and James J.A. Gallagher said the rule issued Nov. 9 by Dr. Thomas W. Georges, secretary of health, curtails enforcement and prevents agents from moving in quickly on narcotics violators.

"The number of arrests made by narcotics agents has shrunk from 62 last September to four in January," the lawmakers said. "The Nov. 9 edict has demoralized the 28 specially trained narcotic agents employed by the state."

Millington said the rule doesn't apply to all investigations. "If agents see a direct violation of the law and have sound evidence," he said, "they are to go ahead immediately with arrests."

"But if they have only certain information and have to do some more investigating," he said, "we want them to notify the department for a review of the evidence by our legal staff to be sure they're secure. We don't want any false arrests."

"There are two reasons for this," Millington said. "First of all, we want to conform with recent Supreme Court decisions regarding the constitutional rights of defendants. And we want to protect the investigators, too. They aren't lawyers. Millington said there may have been a breakdown in communications between Harrisburg and field investigators with some agents following the requirement too rigidly."

Assemblymen Berkes and Gallagher had cited a Greensburg "pot" party involving students from the all-girl Seton Hill College as an example of a slowdown in enforcement.

They said agents notified headquarters and were told to await state police instructions before proceeding with the raid. "As far as we know," they said, "these instructions have yet to be forthcoming."

But narcotics agents said the raid was carried out last Dec. 17 and six men were arrested. They said no students were arrested, but the college president, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. William G. Ryan, said Thursday that four students "were later implicated and withdrew from the college." He said they had been "involved in a marijuana incident in Greensburg."

"It is categorically denied that any such drug incident occurred on the Seton Hill campus," Msgr. Ryan said.

He added, "It is unfortunate that legislators, however well intentioned, would involve a school in a matter of this importance without a thorough investigation. This they did not do."

Governor Orders Inspections Of State College Dormitories

INDIANA, Pa. (AP) — Investigators moved out on the order of Gov. Shafer Thursday to check reports that privately owned dormitories on state college campuses are unsafe.

"The situation as outlined to me demands our immediate attention, because state college students are living in these dormitories, and we must make certain these buildings are safe," said Shafer in ordering the probe.

The investigation followed on the heels of charges by three state legislators that dormitories at Clarion State College and Indiana State University were unsafe.

Fire destroyed privately owned McKean Hall at Clarion Thursday. Most of the 135 male residents were in class and there were no injuries.

The latest charge of substandard living conditions came at Indiana State University, where Republican Reps. James J. Balen of Berks County and Rudolph Dininni of Dauphin County said Grant Hall was overcrowded and unsafe.

Gallen said Wednesday the dorm was filled with highly combustible material. "You could lose everybody if something happened at the wrong time," he said.

Indiana President Dr. Willis E. Pratt said he met with Gallen and Dininni Thursday and agreed to put in a fire door in a hallway and a new door on the furnace room. Pratt said the legislators were satisfied.

The legislators had complained the building's fire alarm could be controlled only from the housemaster's residence. Pratt said only 58 girls lived in the renovated private home, and state laws don't require any fire alarms at all in a dorm of that size.

Pratt said he agreed to put a fire watch on in the dorm nights until the repairs are made.

Pratt said the former home, made of brick, had been used as a dormitory for 18 years, and an annex was added in 1962. There'd been no complaints from the state, dorm residents or their parents till last week, he said.

Indiana has eight other private dorms, all relatively new.

Gallen and Dininni are members of a legislative committee investigating privately owned dormitories. A fellow committee member, Max H. Homer of Allegheny County, had charged earlier that Shafer Hall North at Clarion was substandard.

Homer said the legislators had reports that many private dorms throughout the state were lacking occupancy permits from the Department of Labor and Industry.

A spokesman for the department said the investigation begun Thursday "is not a crash program. These dormitories have been inspected before."

The Department of Public Instruction furnished Labor and Industry with a list of the 23 privately owned dorms on state colleges. A report was expected in a few days.

Dininni said in Indiana, "We will spend the rest of the week here and go through as many student resident facilities as possible."

We're Sorry
